AVERAGE FAMILY INCOME UP 7 PERCENT IN 1966

(Advance data from March 1967 sample survey)

The median income of families in the United States was $7,400 in 1966, according to estimates released today by the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. This was about $480, or 7 percent, higher than the revised 1965 figure of about $7,000.<sup>1</sup> The gain in real purchasing power between 1965 and 1966 was only about 4 percent, since prices also rose during this period.<sup>2</sup>

An estimated 7.0 million families, or 14 percent, of the 48.9 million families in the Nation, received money incomes under $3,000 in 1966. The number of families in this income range declined by approximately 800,000 from the previous year. Another 6.8 million, or 14 percent, received incomes between $3,000 and $5,000 last year; 8.7 million, or 18 percent, had incomes between $5,000 and $7,000; and 11.9 million, or 24 percent, had incomes between $7,000 and $10,000. The remaining 14.5 million families, or 30 percent, received incomes of $10,000 or more.

The median income of men was $5,300 in 1966, up 6 percent from last year's revised median income of $5,000. The median income of women was $1,600 in 1966, 8 percent higher than the revised 1965 figure of $1,500.

The number of persons below the poverty level in 1966 was 29.7 million, a decline of 2.2 million, from 1965 (table 8). The incidence of poverty among the nonwhite population in 1966 was 41 percent as compared to 12 percent for the white population.

The 1966 income statistics presented in this report were obtained from the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey of March 1967. The information was collected from the civilian non-institutional population and members of the Armed Forces living off post or with their families on post in the United States. More detailed income data for families and persons will appear in a report in this series to be issued later this year.

This report covers money income only, prior to deductions for taxes. With the exception of one item—the poverty level—detailed definitions of the terms and concepts used in this report can be found in Current Population Reports, Series P-60, No. 51. Families and unrelated individuals were classified as being below the poverty level on the basis of the poverty income index developed by the Social Security Administration. A household was statistically classified as poor if its total money income fell below specified levels. In 1966, the poverty thresholds for non-farm households ranged from $1,560 for a female unrelated individual 65 or older to an average of $5,440 for a family of seven or more. For a detailed description of this index, see Mollie Orshansky: "Counting the Poor: Another Look at the Poverty Profile," Social Security Bulletin, January 1965; "Who's Who Among the Poor: A Demographic View of Poverty," Social Security Bulletin, July 1965. Since the estimates in this report are based on a sample, they are subject to sampling variability. Moreover, as in all field surveys of income, the figures are subject to errors of response and nonreporting.
